Party Primaries Complete Victors of Primaries at the Front.

As the fourth day of Nevada Boys' State wended to a close, the races for state positions were finally announced as the respective parties put forth their primary winning candidates.

The Federalists had a somewhat lengthy speech process to choose the best candidate for each position, with each candidate stressing their qualifications for each position as well as their individual desire to hold government positions, in order to provide a stable place to push through legislation. The Nationalist primaries went much the same but with more specifically Nationalist views being stressed in the prospective candidates speeches. After dinner, during a complete gathering of the delegation, the candidates for state office were announced. For the seven Supreme Court positions, the Federalists candidates are Nick Turner, Zane Cleaves, Caleb Toranzo, Kevin Pu, Oscar Torres, Deshawn Williams, and Joshua Ballard. For the Nationalist party, Trevor West, Joseph Morris, Azriel Morales, Eyasue Kebede, and Ryan Blount. For Attorney...

The Sports Corner!

It was a great day for sports inside and outside the delegation. Everyone gave it their all for the recent day of city vs. city sports. Outside though, the United States Men's National soccer team plays today versus Germany, with a win or a tie seeing them advance from the "Group of Death" into Round 16. And to wrap it up, today is the big day for facing the staff, so gear-up and get ready for the showdown of a lifetime.

Crazy City Crises

Ever played the bad scenario-oh-man-what-would-I-do-in-this-situation game? If so, you are not alone. It's always a good thing to have a contingency plan for any situation, whether that terrible event is a tornado, earthquake, or Godzilla. I've asked a few delegates from the different cities to see what they would do if they were mayor and an unlikely crisis arose. In this issue, Animal Attacks and Sharknado.

When Fluffy attacks, you must be prepared. Brandon from Osgood knows what to do. If animals of all varieties suddenly became aggressive, attacking the population of his city, he has a plan. The first thing he would do is round up all the affected animals and run tests on them to find out what was causing the change in behavior: blood tests, reaction tests, food preference tests, anything humanely possible to find out the culprit of the animal attacks. At the same time, he would issue public warnings for the citizenry to be cautious around their pets, and remind everyone that it is all right to use any force necessary against Spot to protect themselves. Finding a cure for whatever is causing the animals to act strangely is the top priority after the safety of his citizens.

Broton's crisis representative Antonio has one word of advice for his citizens: Evacuate. I mean really, what can you do to combat sharks in a tornado? Nothing. That's what. Get out. Dispose the bodies would commence. From then on, it would be life as normal.

Attorney General Masto

NBS is privileged with the opportunity to continue its program with another outstanding orator. Thursday's guest will be Nevada's Attorney General, Catherine Cortez Masto. The homegrown Nevadan has held her position since 2007. Integrity and compassion are the qualities she brings to the table ever since day one.

Masto has worked hard protecting rights of everyone. She stands behind her legislation by holding membership in many organizations working to take the "bad" out of our state. Everything from drugs, sexual-assault, assault, battery and many more crimes are what she has worked fervently to stopping in Nevada.

Women, children, and the elderly are the demographics of who she is trying to serve most. She plays a part in many organizations working to helping these people. From gaining money to being Chairwoman of these groups, her dedication is hard to overlook.

All the hard work and devotion in her title as Attorney General is nothing new. She has worked as Assistant County Manager in Clark County and as federal prosecutor in the nation's capital. The UNR grad also served as Chief of Staff while working under Former Governor, Bob Miller. It is worth noting that Bob Miller is the father of our current Secretary of State, and Attorney General candidate, Ross Miller. Ross spoke to the NBS delegation on Wednesday.

The government website, ag.nv.gov, contributed much information to this article.

Bills Worthy of Senate and Assembly

As a prerequisite to attending Boys' State, we were asked to submit legislation on an issue we felt compelled to argue. As we have progressed in our committees, we passed legislation that the group found effective and important to discuss at a higher level. Every committee will be represented on Carson City Day. Neal Bhandari has been kind enough to provide examples from the Nationalist party. Neal and his party have chosen one such bill referring to the legalization of certain drugs such as marijuana. Money obtained from this new found industry will be used to support education and infrastructure. Programs will be offered as an alternative to jail in order to straighten out these individuals. This is only one example of many bills that have been chosen from both parties, in hopes of being passed on Carson City day, bringing glory to their committee, party, and city.

Monday Night Smackdown!!

Be there, where Secretary takes on Secretary!

We'll sell you the whole seat, but you'll only need the edge!! Fenzke has a 19:1 chance of knocking-out Miller in the second round, but only if he survives that long.

The fight of a life time:
 Ross Miller Vs. Jacob Fenzke.

Ross Miller, with a total of one career win, this man with pure testosterone and muscle going against Jacob Fenzke, uses cold cut logic and has been training, his whole life by running with his two basset hounds. Earlier today, Fenzke said "I have been bulking up lately and I don't even think Ross lifts, let alone able to take a hit from these guns."

Holistic Evolution of Medical Proponents

We are currently seeking new representation in the State of Nevada to further the understanding and progression of our cause. As an organization, we believe that there are much healthier, and more natural solutions to medicine than are being examined today. Furthermore, as a society we have settled back on those things that are synthesized and bastardized by science so much that they can't even be related to their original form. We would like to support bills and candidates that are like minded to our cause and will free up the legalities that hinder the movements further advancement in your state.

While there are numerous ways for the gaming industry to expand, we have used extensive research to find ways that will build upon the current gaming ecosystem without causing economic harm. Some systems that are franchised across multiple states can take Nevada money and send it to other states. We support gaming money coming to and staying in Nevada. I hope we can count on your support to keep Nevada gaming money in Nevada.
